THE Shanghai Courier has recently been casting about for an island in these seas which may be converted by the British Government into a second Malta, and has found on the Bonham Road, and for polluting the it in Quelpart. It is true enough that the occupation by England of some new position is desirable, taking into consideration the magnitude of British interests in China, and the advantages of Quelpart as pointed out by our contemporary are great and various. The suggestion is certainly worthy of consideration, and the only objection to it that arises is the fact that, as it would be a purely military station, its occupation would probably entail a new and heavy expense. Formosa, on the other hand, would be a prize worth acquisition. With English capital it the first prisoner and the box was found on the could be made exceedingly productive. A LESSON IN TURKISH. The word "Ulema" is plural, and means such persons as have graduated in Mussulman law and theology in the "medresses" or schools attrohed to the mosques. The pupils of these "medresses" are called "Softas." This word Softa is a corruption of the past participle of the Persian "soukhte," which signifies burnt, and indicates that those who bear it are consumed by divine love. The Softus are taught by professors called "Khodjas." and live in "impretts," or gratuitous hotels, on the money provided by pious bequeats. Their numbers are very large, not because Turks are pheno--menally devout, but for the sound, practical resson that the Softas are exempt from military service. The Softas ultimately become Khodjas themselves, and Khodja, which is borrowed from the Persian, means "reader." The "Imame," who are the verifible priests, take charge of the ceremonies of religion. Their name comes from the Arabic, and signifies "he who holds himself forward." Naturally they are selected from the Ulema. "Mellah," from the Arabic "mevla." means literally "one charged with administrative power," but notually it designs no class in particular, but is applied to anybody who has acquired a reputation for purity of conduct, much as in some English counties the title captuin is given for life to anybody who has been licutenant in the militia for three months.—Standard.

LOGIC AND ETYMOLOGY. Many people would be amazed at the notion of a "forest" without trees," but those who Thereter attached 83.0 83.5 have either studied the old forest laws or have mastered the geography of the New Forest on the spot know that at all events there may be large parts of a forest wholly treeless. "Silvam habet in foresta" is a Domesday phrase, showing that, though there were woods within the forest, yet the forest itself was not all wood. Still one is a little startled at finding any one bold enough to deny that a forest could contain any trees at all. We find such a daring person in a conchman spoken of in Mr. Frank Buckland's "Log-book of a Fisherman and Zoologist." "At one place the tourist asked * What they called you hills ? * Eh, but that's just a deer-forest, says the conchumn. Deerforest,' said Mr. Tourist, 'but I see no trees.' *Trees, said coachee, but, man, who ever heard of trees in a forest?" Mr. Buckland, with rather curious logic, adds. "In a true! etymological sense I believe the conchmun's definition of a 'forcet' was right, for I find the T. Thunder. U. Bad, threatening. V. Visibility. W. Storm. following definition in a dictionary :--- Forest, Z. Calm. The letters are repeated to indicate any increase over in geography, a huge wood; or a large extent of ground covered with trees." Then the dictionary adds some of the usual derivations, among which the Latin foresta and the German frost may be safely corrected into foresta and forst. The New Forest and the Domesday record thereof, though they hardly bear out the coachman's doctrine that there can be no trees in a forest, quite upset the tourist's doctrine that there can be no forest without them. According to the most likely etymology, foresta NEW BOOKS: WORKS of REFERENCE, is from foris, foras, an outside place, outside many things, especially outside the ordinary law. There was some one-who-could not-see the wood for the trees. To be unable to see the forest for the wood is a very likely case indeed. In Mr. Backland's story the wood was not there, so the cosoliman was able to see the forest. But it is certain that the forest might have been there though there had been a reasonable amount of wood to hide it from the coachman LAMPS, Mast-head LAMPS, Cabin Suspenand to suggest it to the tourist.—Pall Mall gion LAMPS, and Bulkhead CANDLESTICKS Gazette.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

TAOB comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accepts being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. OPENING OF THE CONGRESS OF -in September, 1773, the delegates from TH eleven Provinces assembled in Carpenter's Hall, the State House being occupied by the Assembly. The venerable Peyton Randolph was shosen President, and the Man of Truth. Chas. Thonison, Secretary. There was much hesitation as to whether the Congress should be opened with prayer, or what form prayer would suit the Quakers, Churchmon, and Presbyterians. Mr. Duché was finally chosen to open the session, and, in ful canonicals, read the usual potitions and the Thirty fifth Psalm. The news of the oannonade of Boston had just reached the Assembly. "It seemed," writes John Adams in a letter to his wife, dated September 18, 1774, "as if Heaven had ordained that Psalm to be read on that morning." When its sublime invocation of God's belo in extremity had been read, Mr. Duché broko into an extemporaneous prayer, which brought tears into the eyes of every han of £10,000 on any one First-class Risk, or to present, and made them one by an electric sympathy.
